

Caption ↓

Roswell enters 2nd phase of performing arts study

June 27, 2017

By David Iyata, For the AJC

The Roswell Arts Fund has gotten funding approval from the city for the second phase of a feasibility study on a performing arts center for the city.

The study will clarify the ideal size, location and funding opportunities, as well as potential challenges, officials said. The envisioned center would have a main theater for 500 to 1,000 people and a multi-purpose “black box” for about 200 in a 35,000- to 50,000-square-foot building.

A steering committee working with consultants DLR Group/Westlake Reed Leskosky/Arts

Consulting Group has determined the ideal location would be within walking distance of

<https://www.ajc.com/news/local/roswell-enters-2nd-phase-performing-arts-study/3s2lolcg71MWplhVgRVdYM/>

... (to) keep traffic and parking outside of the heart of the restaurant district while creating a bridge between this and other proposed projects in and around Canton Street and the Roswell Square," said Jeff Hopkins, committee co-chair with Lawrence Catchpole.

Subscribe for 99¢

Information: <http://bit.ly/2s4Ymz9>

Don't miss a thing

Get breaking news alerts as they happen

Enter your email

--	--	--	--

Advertiser content

Promoted Stories

Sponsored Links by Taboola

Remember Lisa Bonet? Try Not To Smile When You See Her Now

Direct Healthy

AJC

Subscribe
for 99¢

'Americas Favorite Veterinarian' Reveals The One Thing Every Dog Owner Should Do

Ultimate Pet Nutrition

Richard Gere's Son, Homer, is Turning Heads After His 18th Birthday

Finance Nancy

Thinning Hair? Pour This On Your Head And Watch What Happens

JuveTress

Guy Posts Selfie With His Dog. Police See It And Rush To His Home

IcePop

Plastic Surgeon Reveals: "You Can Fill In Wrinkles At Home" (Here's How)

Beverly Hills MD

More from AJC
